Rafe Saxon

Introduction:

It was a crucial ti[illegible] the planet Noir. The nights had [illegible] longer, the days colder and the sola[illegible] had begun to howl. The two-thou[illegible] year cycle which had been predict[illegible] Grand Shaman was coming to an e[illegible] Certain darkness and the end of life [illegible] Noir was a certainty, unless . . .

In the beginning, Noir had been a paradise. Its women voluptuous and without shame; its men hungry for the pleasures of the flesh. But the years and the growing cold had tempered the erotic appetites of Noir's citizenry. And, according to legend, it has been only the primeval cry of woman's orgasms that had sustained life on Noir. But that cry of life had all but disappeared, and with it, the chance for resurrection of the planet. All seemed lost until the strange and unexplainable appearance of a man who was endowed better than any man in the history of Noir. He called himself Rafe Saxon.

For Rafe Saxon, his appearance on the planet Noir was a mystery. His destiny was a secret to himself. It was a strange, forbidding world he had entered, one in which the populace appeared remote and cold. It was a land where a man with the sexual prowess of a Rafe Saxon felt instantly alienated. And during the first months of his journey of Noir, Rafe Saxon kept away from the beautiful, but cold women he encountered.

His days were spent wandering alone, trying to temper the fires that raged through his huge manhood.

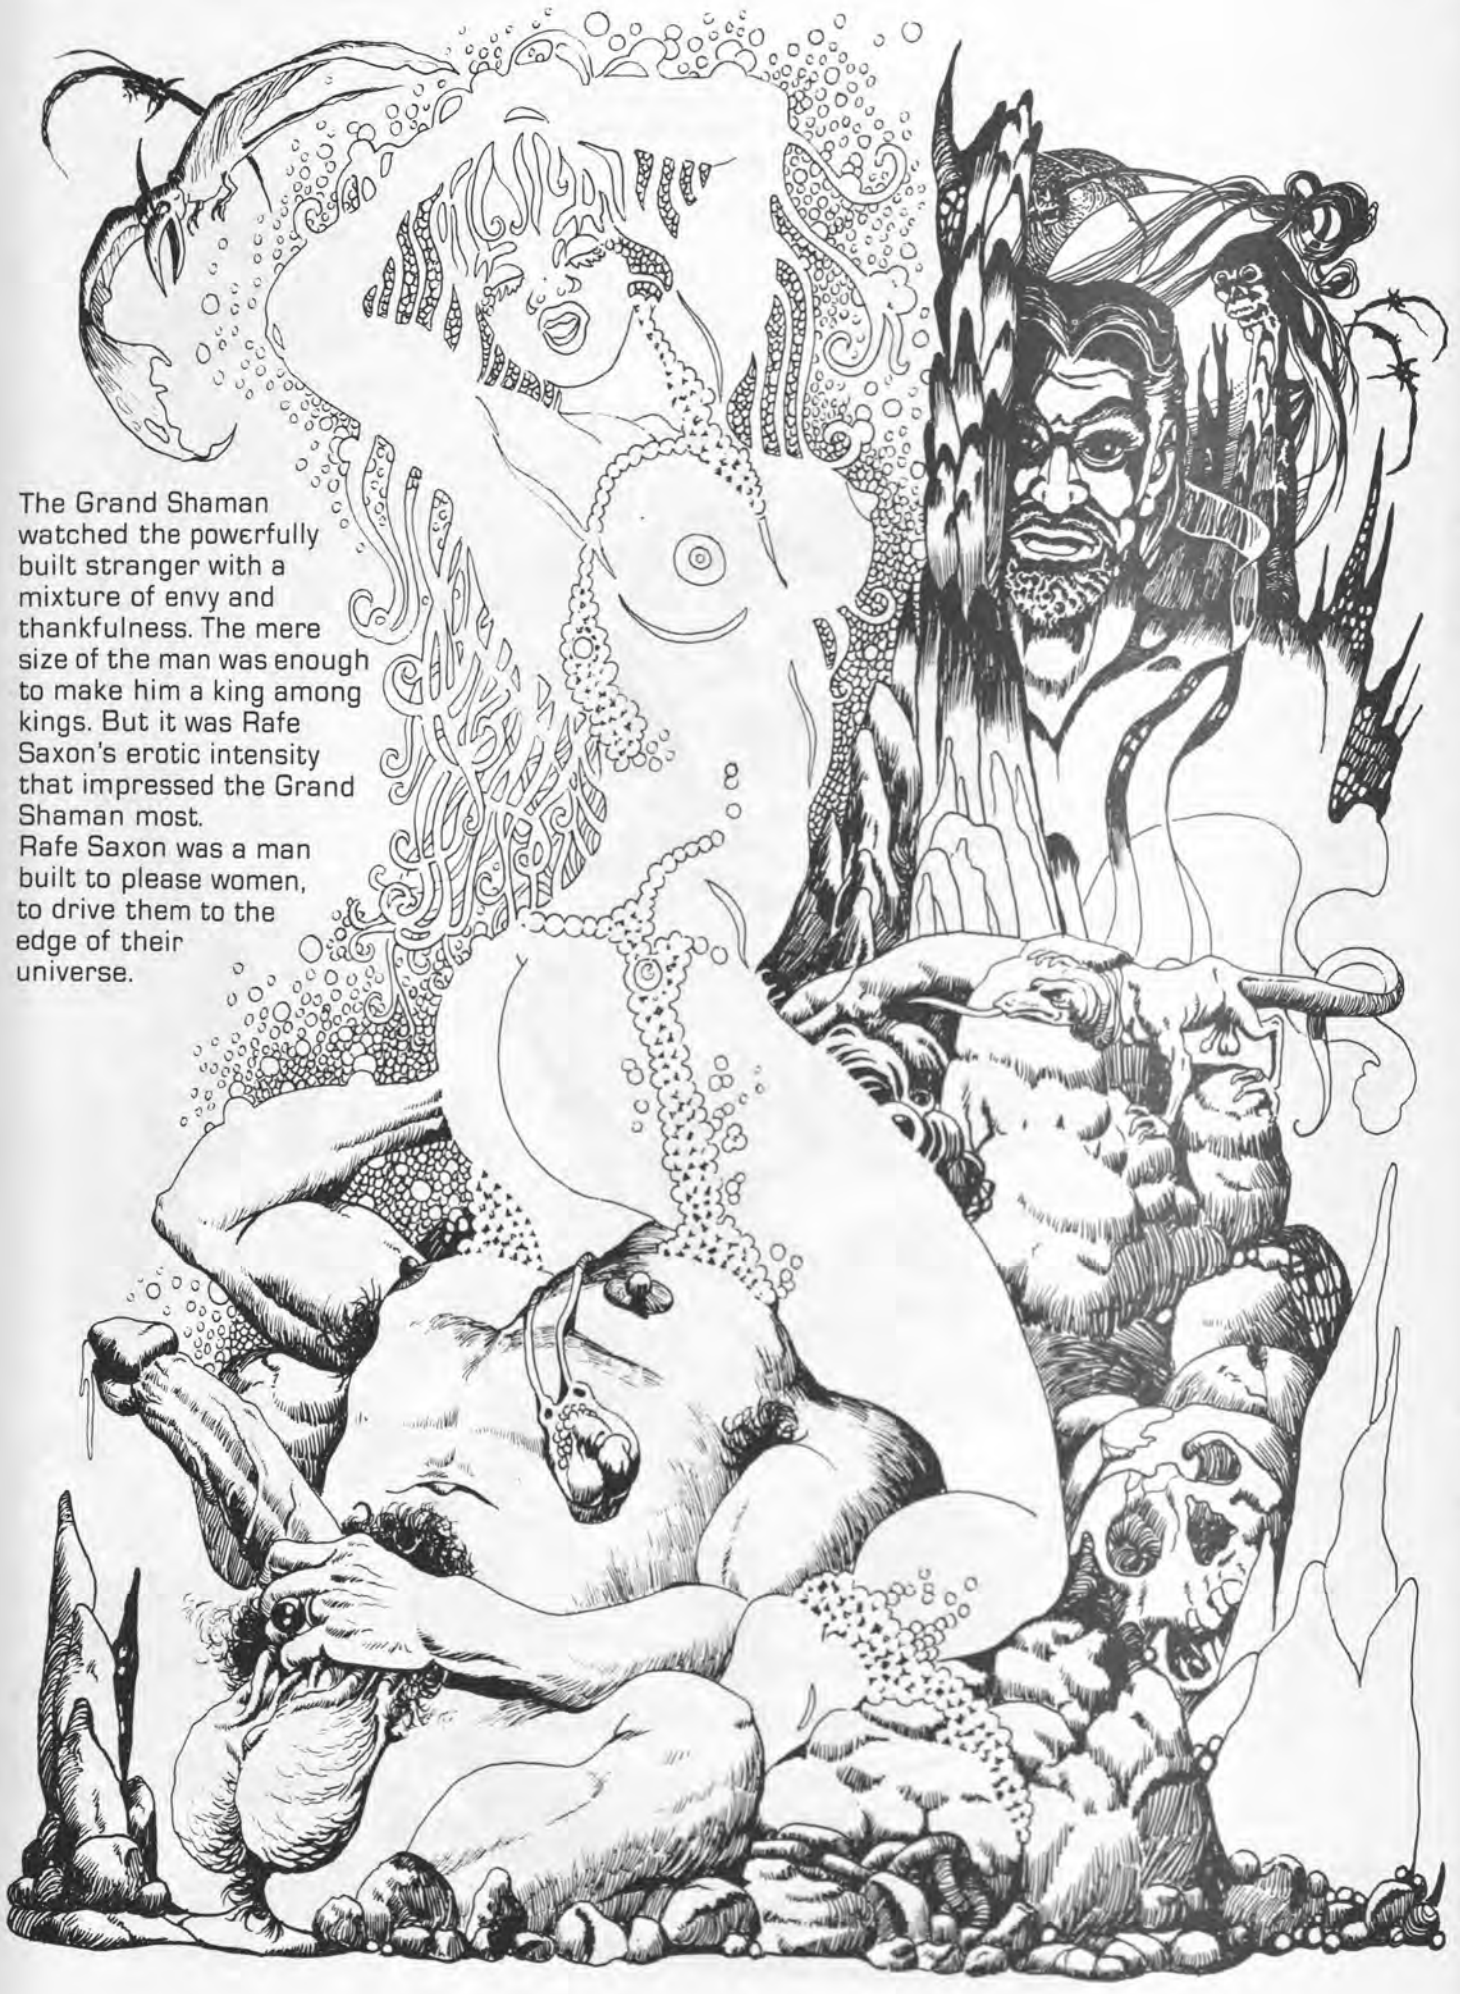
Rafe Saxon knew that he had a destiny—but what it was could not be divined.

The days were filled with erotic imaginings as Rafe Saxon wandered alone throughout the strange world. Long afternoons were spent sitting atop small hills, stroking himself until his hungry manhood throbbed and ached for the touch of a woman.

But Rafe Saxon was not alone. Following him were the severe, angry-looking man's eyes containing the burning fires of desperation.

This was the Grand Shaman of Noir, a man in whose skillful hands lay the destiny of a civilization. A man who thought perhaps he might have found the planet's redeemer of legend.

The visions were startlingly real for Rafe Saxon. The gorgeous naked sirens came to him in his waking dreams, opening their lush thighs and showing him their seething tunnels of moist heat.
And while these visions dominated his mind, Rafe sat alone, his huge hardness in his hands, massaging himself with the furious energy of a man seeking to break through into another dimension.

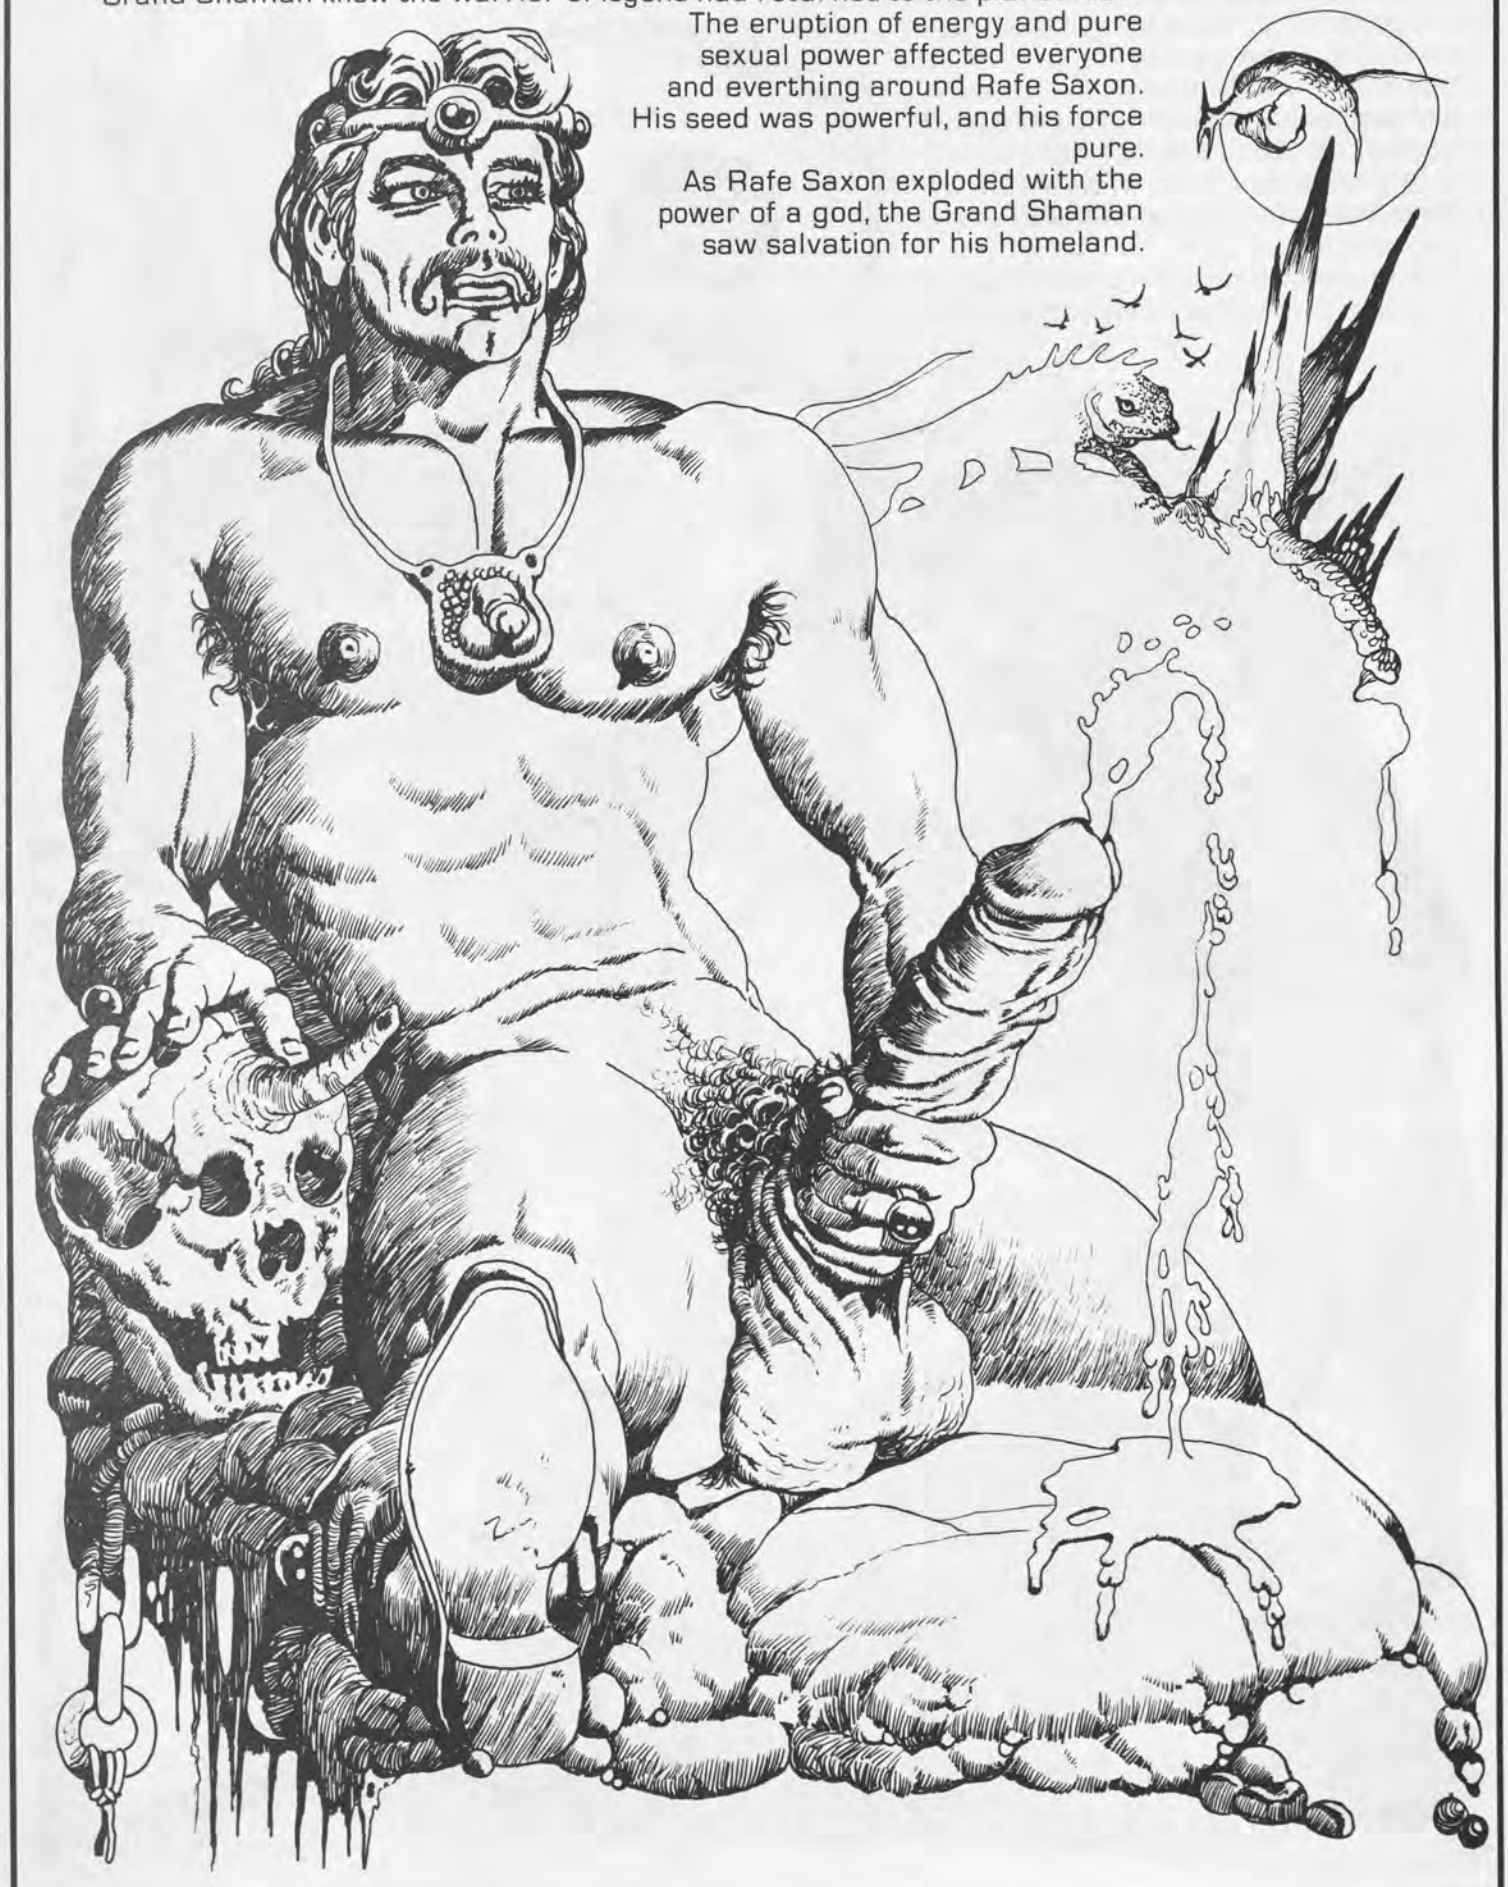


The Grand Shaman watched the powerfully built stranger with a mixture of envy and thankfulness. The mere size of the man was enough to make him a king among kings. But it was Rafe Saxon's erotic intensity that impressed the Grand Shaman most.
Rafe Saxon was a man built to please women, to drive them to the edge of their universe.

But it was the moment when Rafe Saxon culminated his fantasy that the Grand Shaman knew the warrior of legend had returned to the planet Noir.

The eruption of energy and pure sexual power affected everyone and everthing around Rafe Saxon. His seed was powerful, and his force pure.

As Rafe Saxon exploded with the power of a god, the Grand Shaman saw salvation for his homeland.



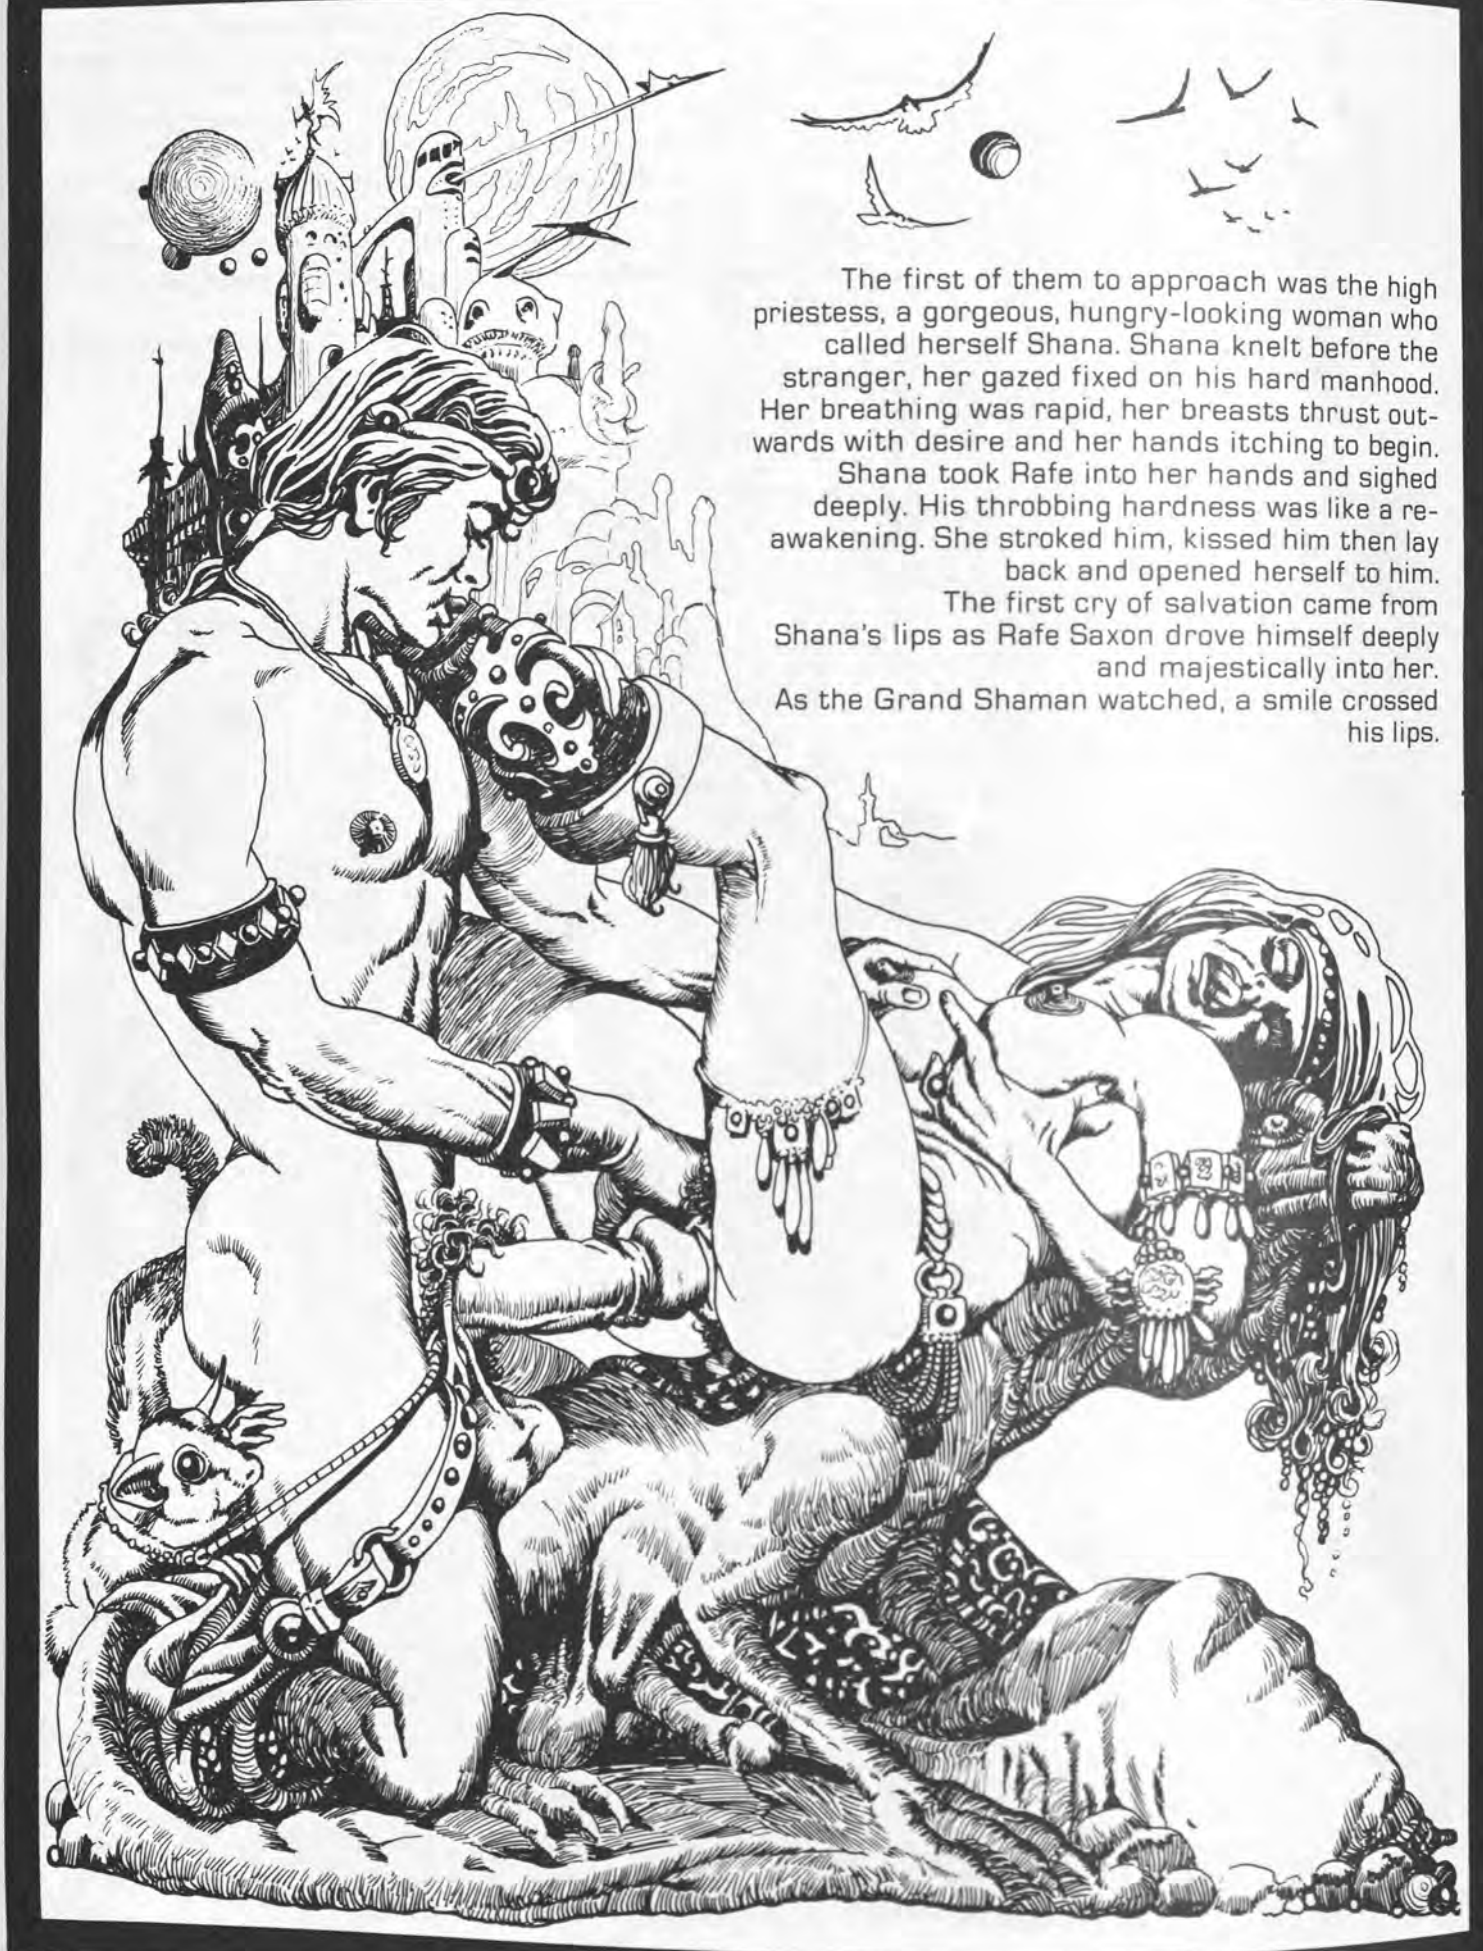
The signs of destiny are sometimes very elusive. But for Rafe Saxon, the introduction to his path came with startling certainty.
Out of the woods appeared a severe, almost desperate man who introduced himself as the Grand Shaman.
One glance into the man's eyes and Rafe knew that his life would be inexorably tied to his.
The moment had come, but without answers and without explanation.

The strange, intense man simply whispered to Rafe Saxon that it was his destiny to make every woman on the planet Noir, to use his natural talents and prowess to ignite the fires in the loins of every female and make them cry out with the shrill explosiveness of their pleasure.
To this, Rafe Saxon knew he had been born.

The kingdom became aware of Rafe Saxon. Brought to the chambers of the Grand Shaman, Rafe Saxon was placed on a large pedestal, stripped naked and exhibited. The Grand Shaman wanted the heat to begin burning between the thighs of the women of Noir—and an exhibition of this type was the most effective way to ignite the fires.

Rafe lay naked and exposed as one beautiful woman after another walked silently into the chambers to view him. He enjoyed their hungry looks and their slightly parted lips as they took him in. He knew he was impressive, and he could see that they were responding.

Nipples became taunt, and most of the women began undulating just slightly in anticipation.



The first of them to approach was the high priestess, a gorgeous, hungry-looking woman who called herself Shana. Shana knelt before the stranger, her gazed fixed on his hard manhood. Her breathing was rapid, her breasts thrust outwards with desire and her hands itching to begin.

Shana took Rafe into her hands and sighed deeply. His throbbing hardness was like a reawakening. She stroked him, kissed him then lay back and opened herself to him.

The first cry of salvation came from Shana's lips as Rafe Saxon drove himself deeply and majestically into her.

As the Grand Shaman watched, a smile crossed his lips.

Rafe Saxon listened with pleasure as the women he mounted uttered their gutteral cries of ecstasy. He felt their passion, their warm moistness and their eager bodies as one after the other came to him for that moment that had so long been elusive.

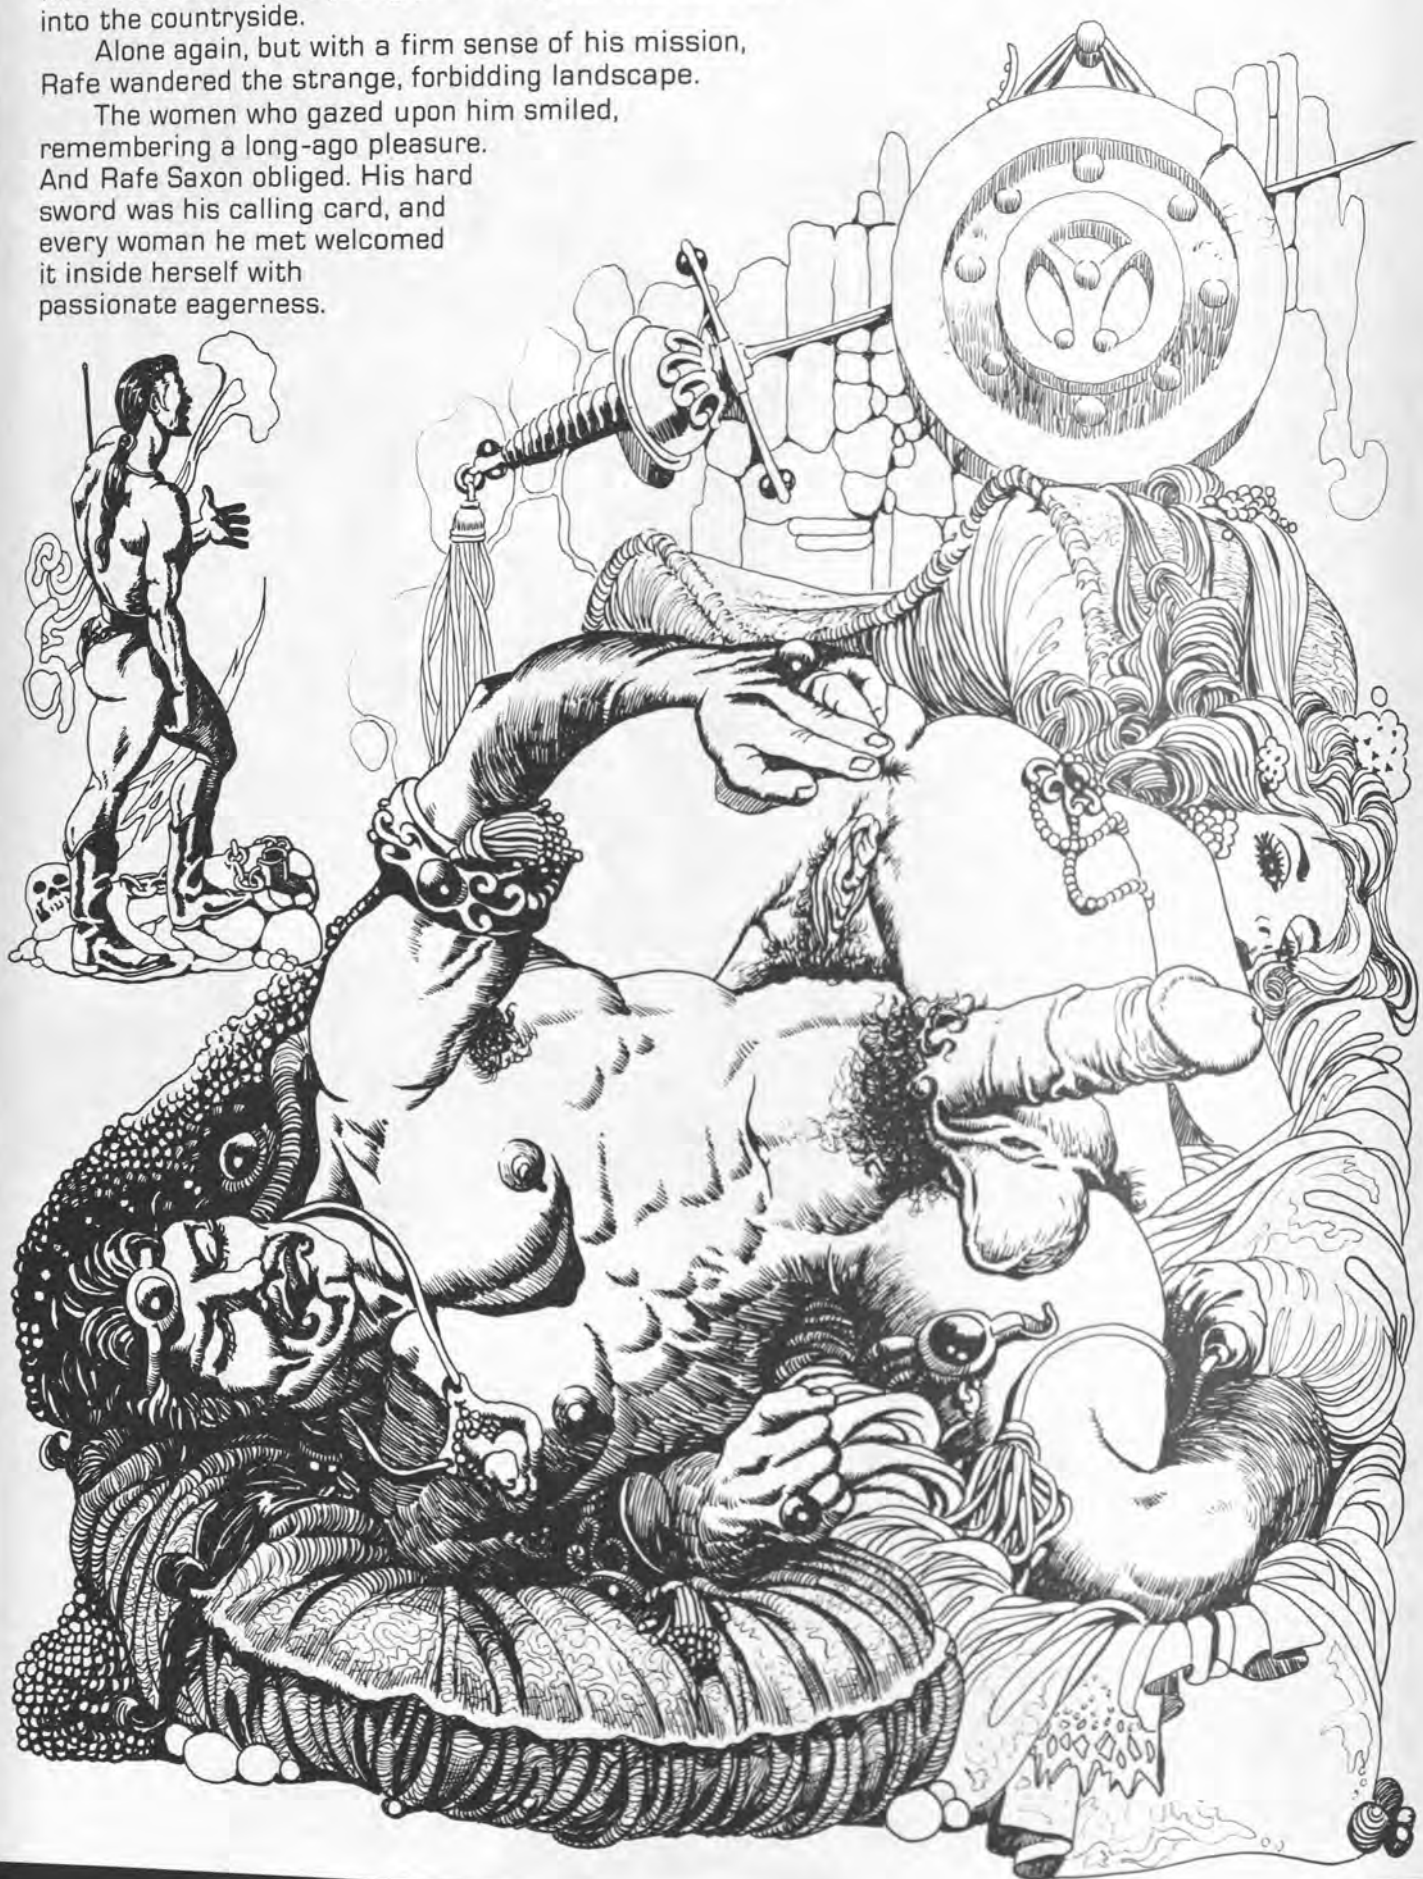
Rafe felt closer now to his destiny than ever before. It had been evident to him that his path lay in making women happy. He had been endowed with the equipment and the desire.

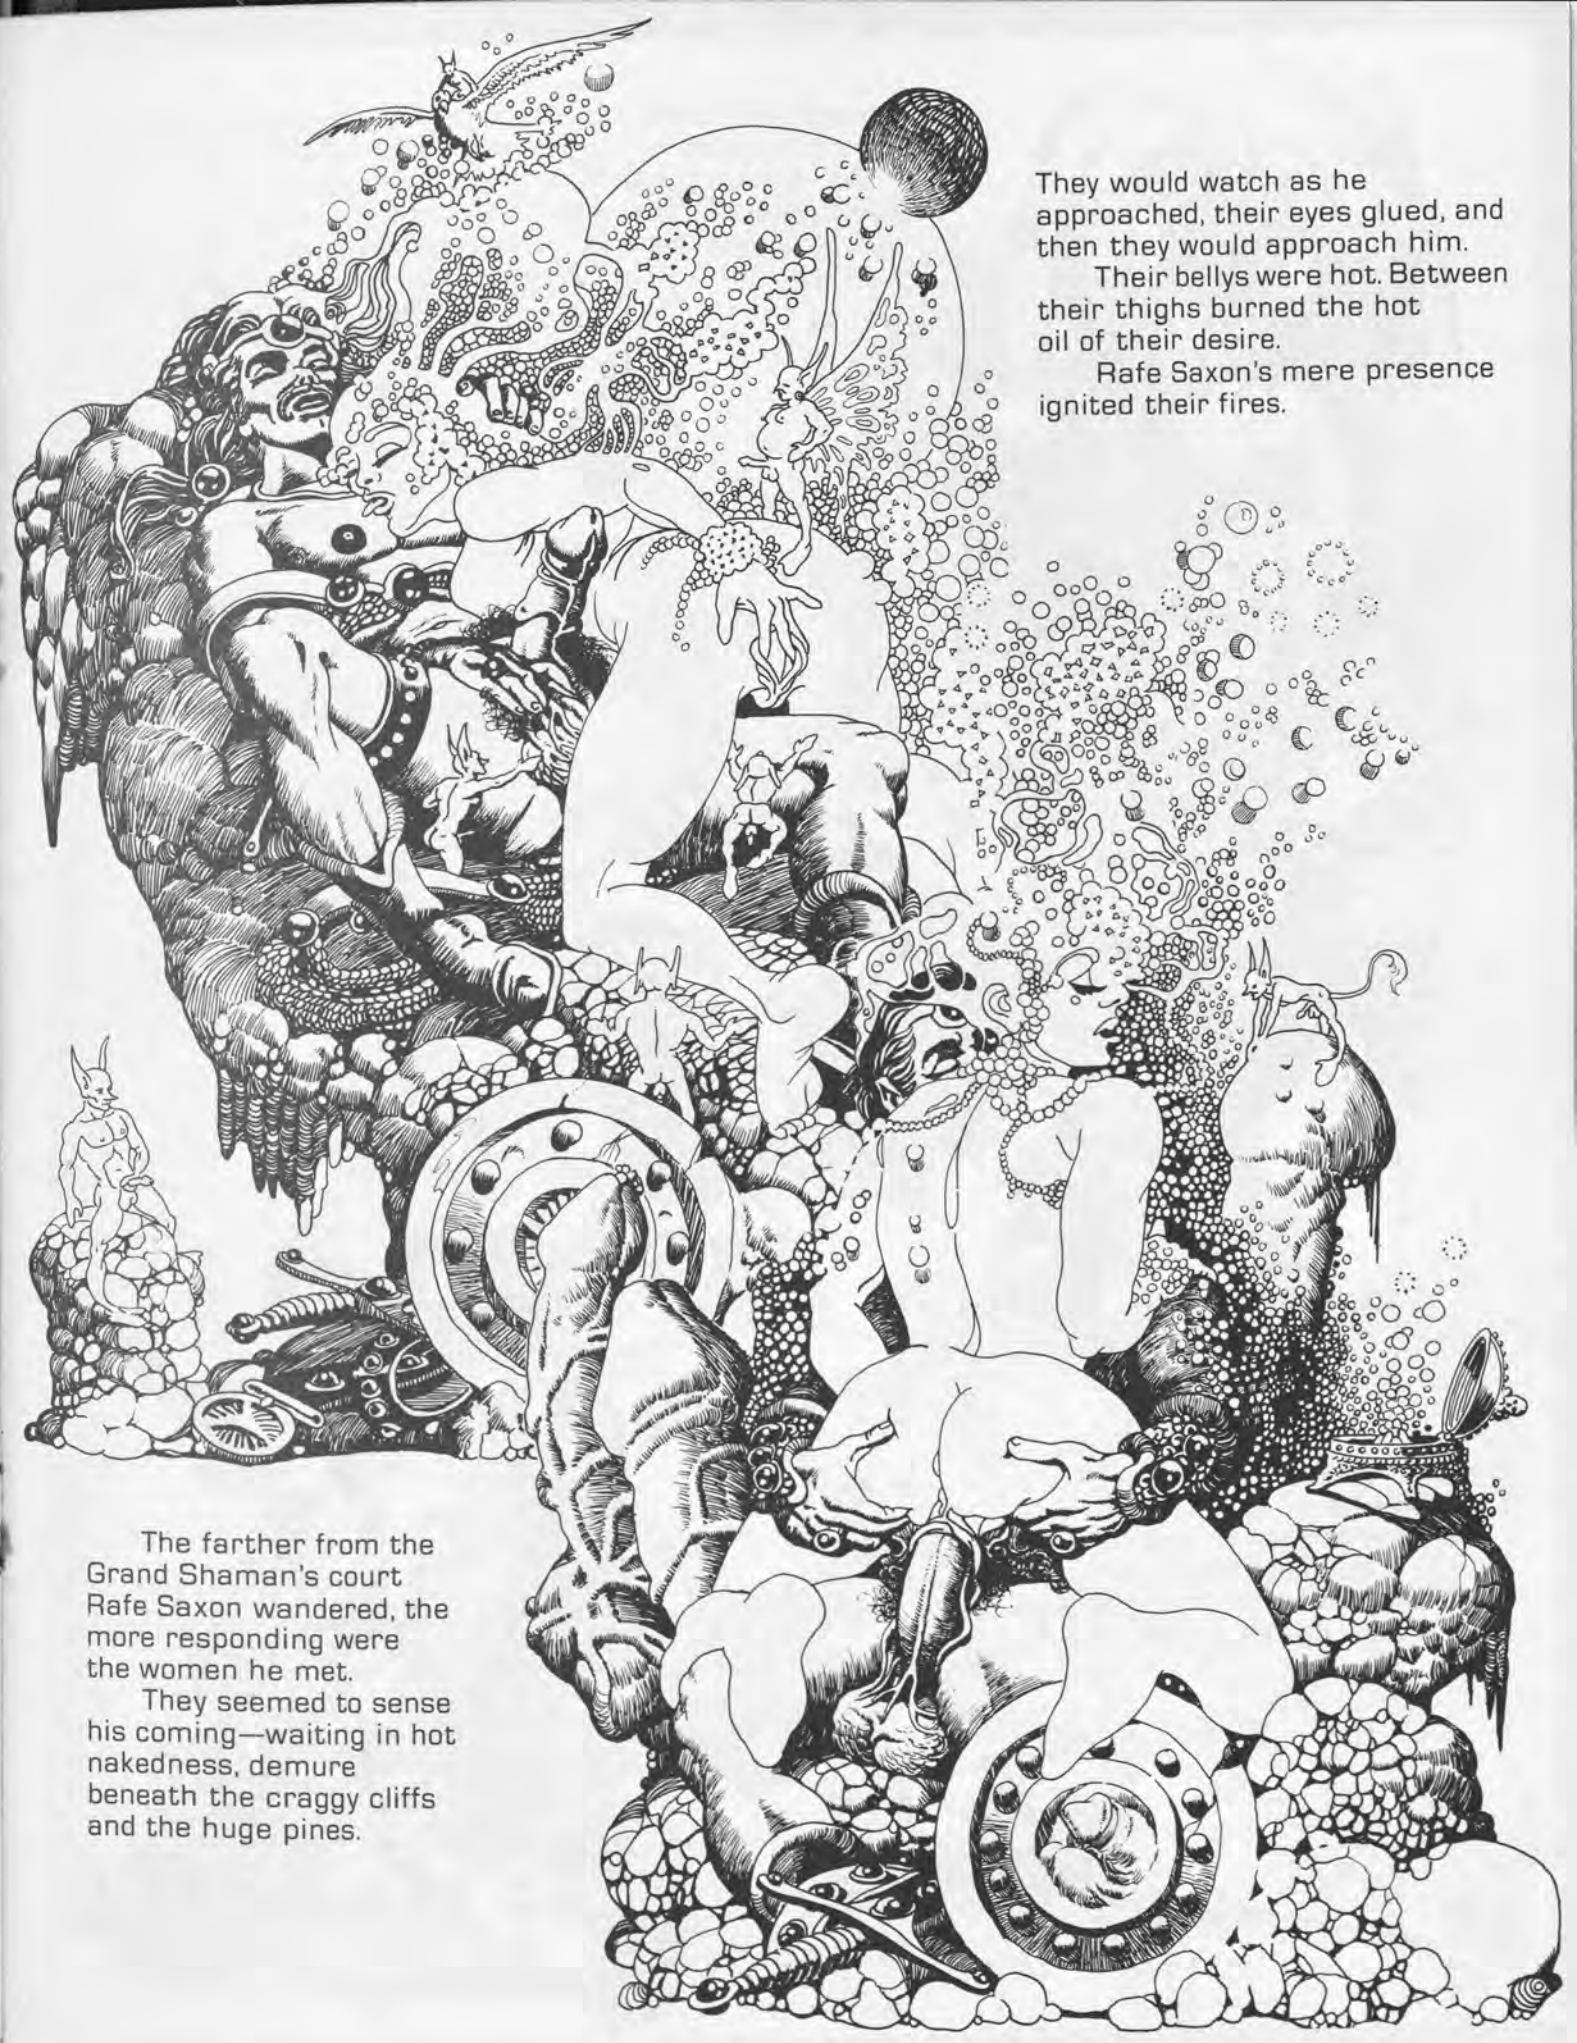
But even as pleasure mounted, a nagging question still lingered in the back of his mind. Was this all there is?

Once the ladies of the Grand Shaman's court had had their fill of Rafe Saxon, the young pleasure-giver was sent out into the countryside.

Alone again, but with a firm sense of his mission, Rafe wandered the strange, forbidding landscape.

The women who gazed upon him smiled, remembering a long-ago pleasure. And Rafe Saxon obliged. His hard sword was his calling card, and every woman he met welcomed it inside herself with passionate eagerness.





They would watch as he approached, their eyes glued, and then they would approach him.

Their bellys were hot. Between their thighs burned the hot oil of their desire.

Rafe Saxon's mere presence ignited their fires.

The farther from the Grand Shaman's court Rafe Saxon wandered, the more responding were the women he met.

They seemed to sense his coming—waiting in hot nakedness, demure beneath the craggy cliffs and the huge pines.

And, as each of them took her turn riding Rafe Saxon's warrior sword, the cry of passion's release could be heard throughout the land.

And each time another of Noir's women was reborn, the Grand Shaman could hear the life-giving wail of pleasure.

The land became stranger, and colder as Rafe Saxon moved purposefully into the perimeter and finally crossed the frontier into the outlands. Here, the first sign of the cold night which lay ahead evidenced themselves. Harsh animals of prey and strange creatures roamed the landscape, de-evolving into a time far in the past.
A dark, forbiding time.

The outland women did not throw themselves at Rafe Saxon as had the women in the interior. These creatures had forgotten. They fought the rumblings that issued forth from deep between their thighs. But Rafe Saxon was a warrior. He felt the molten passions that lay deep within these strange women. And the unknown of their stirred him beyond anything he had known before. Instead of being intimidated, Rafe Saxon was inspired to greatness.

As the first of the outland women straddled Rafe Saxton, holding his huge manhood firmly in her hands and planting the tip between her swollen love lips, the tide began to turn.

And, as she slid slowly, almost excruciatingly down onto Rafe's throbbing sword, the word began to spread.

And when, almost against her will, she screamed and shuddered with the pure force of her orgasm, the Grand Shaman also shuddered—at the prospect of victory.

The women felt his presence. Rafe Saxon was coming, and their bodies returned them to the days of sunshine and warm, moonlit nights.
And as Rafe drove himself deep into them, each of them became transformed, becoming soft, moist and life-giving.

The outland grew warmer.
The sun seemed to expand.
And the women came,
Throwing off their clothes and spreading their luscious thighs for this stranger's majestic hardness.

With each woman, Rafe Saxon felt his strength growing. He became a towering figure of passion. His hard cock would never shrivel. He would be this way forever.

But even as he drove the women to heights of pleasure, Rafe Saxon felt the strangeness of his existence. The world around him was changing—growing warmer, more colorful.

The mystery of his purpose remained. And the mystery of the change around him grew more intense.

The women of the outlands were transforming before Rafe Saxon's eyes. The deeper into the strange countryside he went, the more dramatic that transformation. And each hot valley of lust that he entered seemed to provoke even more change.

They wanted him with such an intense desire that all other things were forgotten.

And Rafe Saxon obliged with the skill and power of a man who had only one mission in life—to make women happy and to listen to their intense howls of pleasure.

The skies grew brighter and howling arctic winds turned into warm summer zephyrs.
And the women kept coming. Naked and on their knees, they stroked Rafe Saxon with their tongues and their lips. They sought every part of his body in order to give him pleasure.
The frenzy was building, and each moment of erotic intensity only added to it.

The Grand Shaman kept abreast of Rafe Saxon's progress and was delighted with the results. The weather and the mood of Noir was changing everywhere. But the Grand Shaman knew that the final stroke of destiny, the final salvation lay in the court of the outland queens—Lona and Con.

The first sight of Lona and Con made Rafe Saxon instantly hard. But at the same time, their presence indicated an end to his long, pleasure-laden journey.

They were the last of the women on Noir. And, they were the coldest and the most distant.

Rafe Saxon summoned all of his powers. His manhood grew to a size that even startled him. This was his final test, his ultimate moment. Rafe Saxon became godlike in the presence of Lona and Con. They feigned disinterest. But their eyes wandered as did their trembling hands as they began to touch themselves. The power that lay in Rafe Saxon's loins was too powerful for them to resist.

The final thrusts were made, and the final sounds of ultimate pleasure rang out from the throats of Lona and Con. And Rafe Saxon felt the thrill of total victory as the naked beauties fell into rapture.

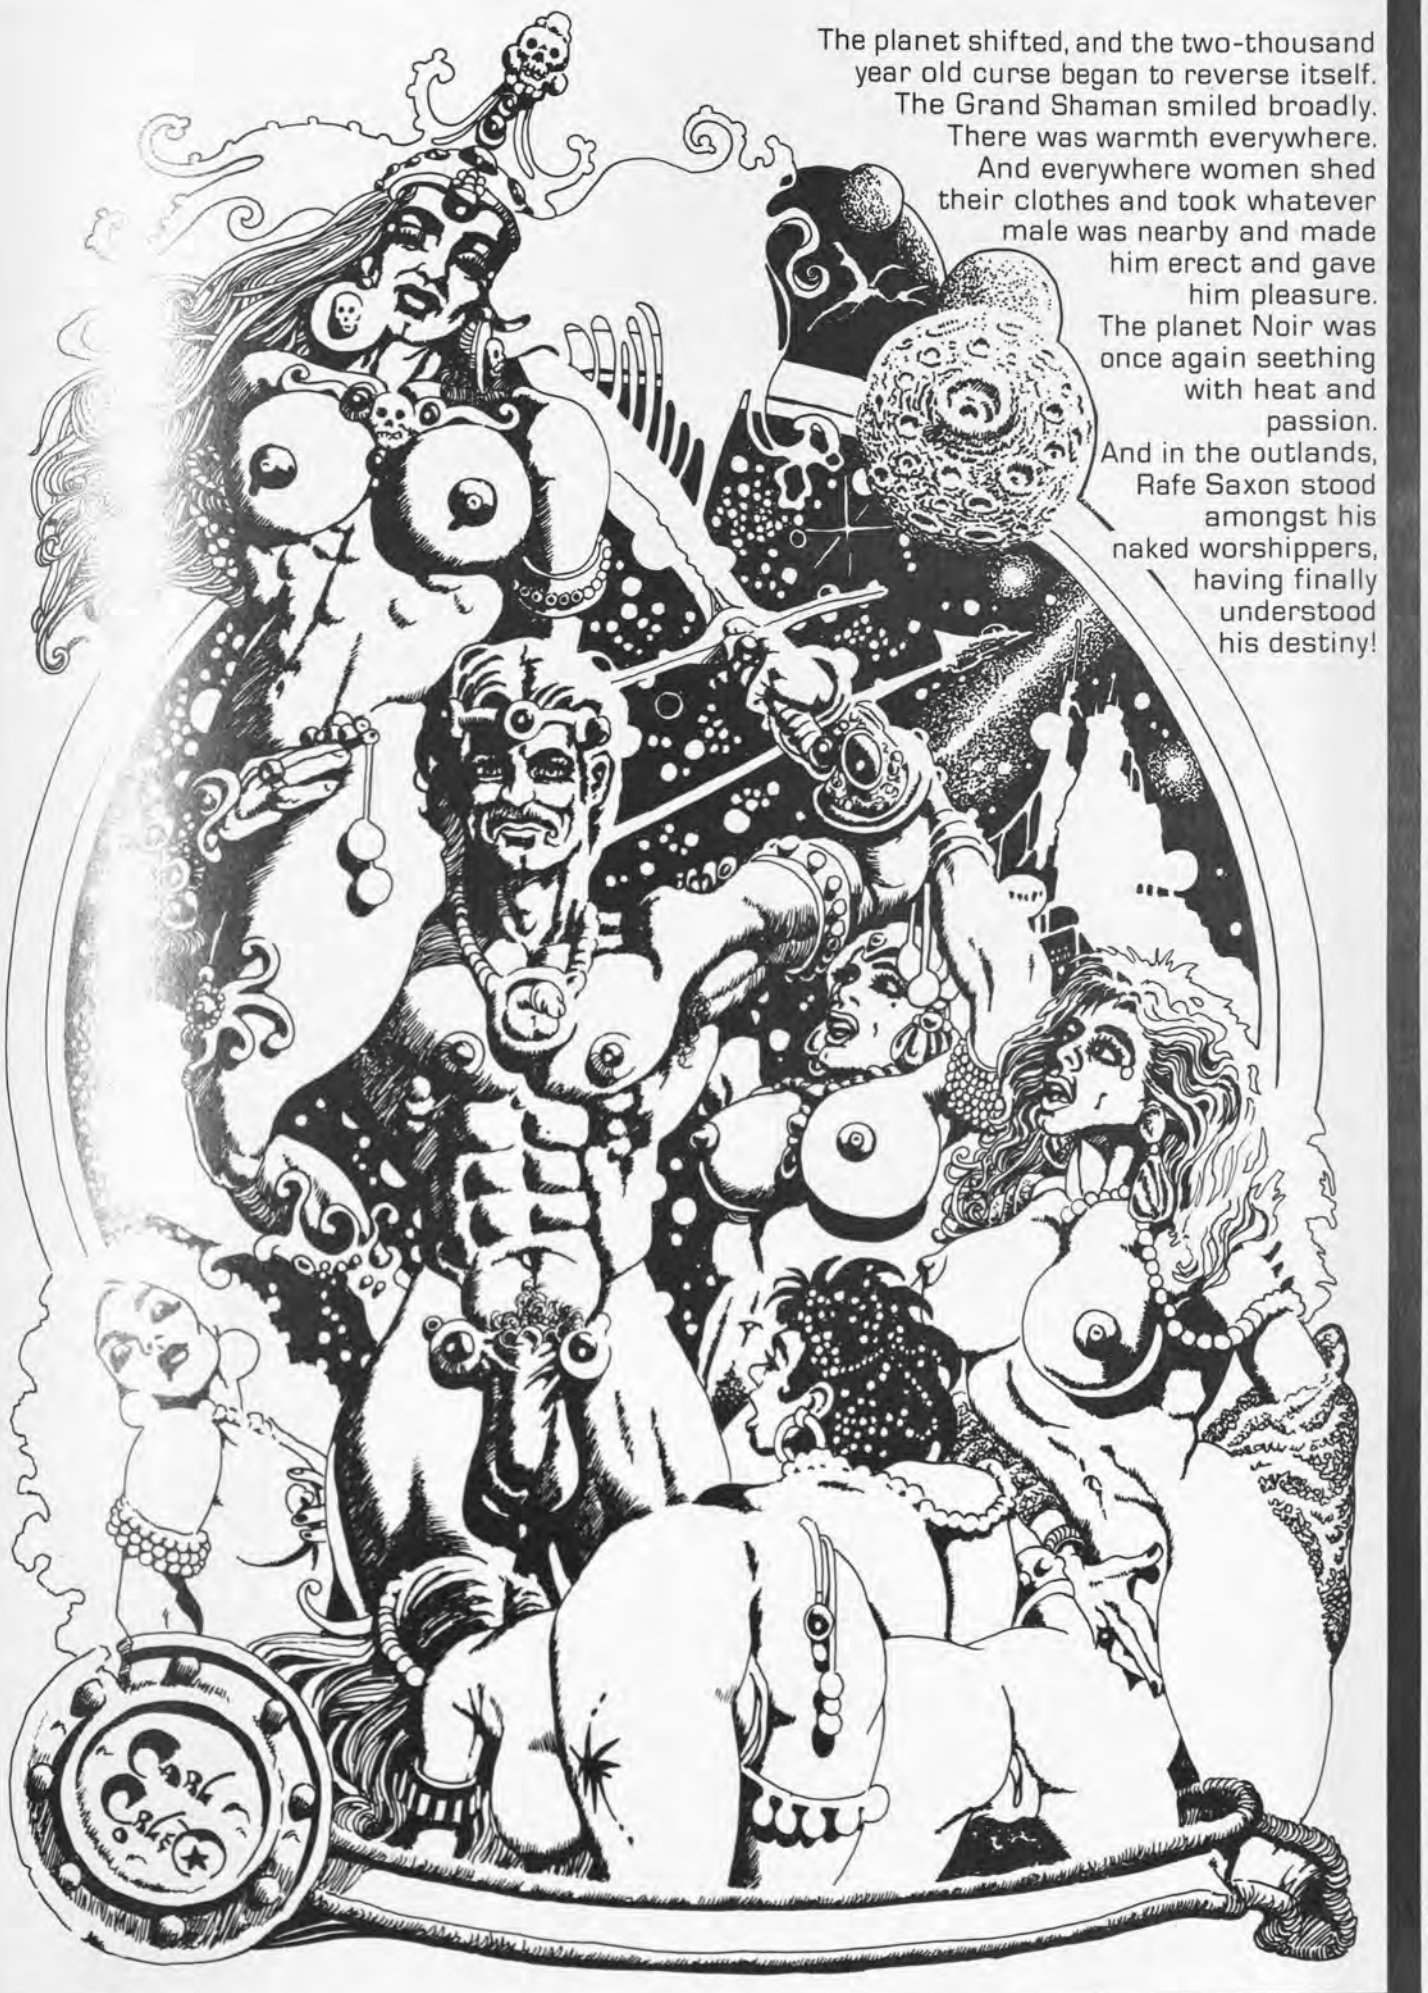
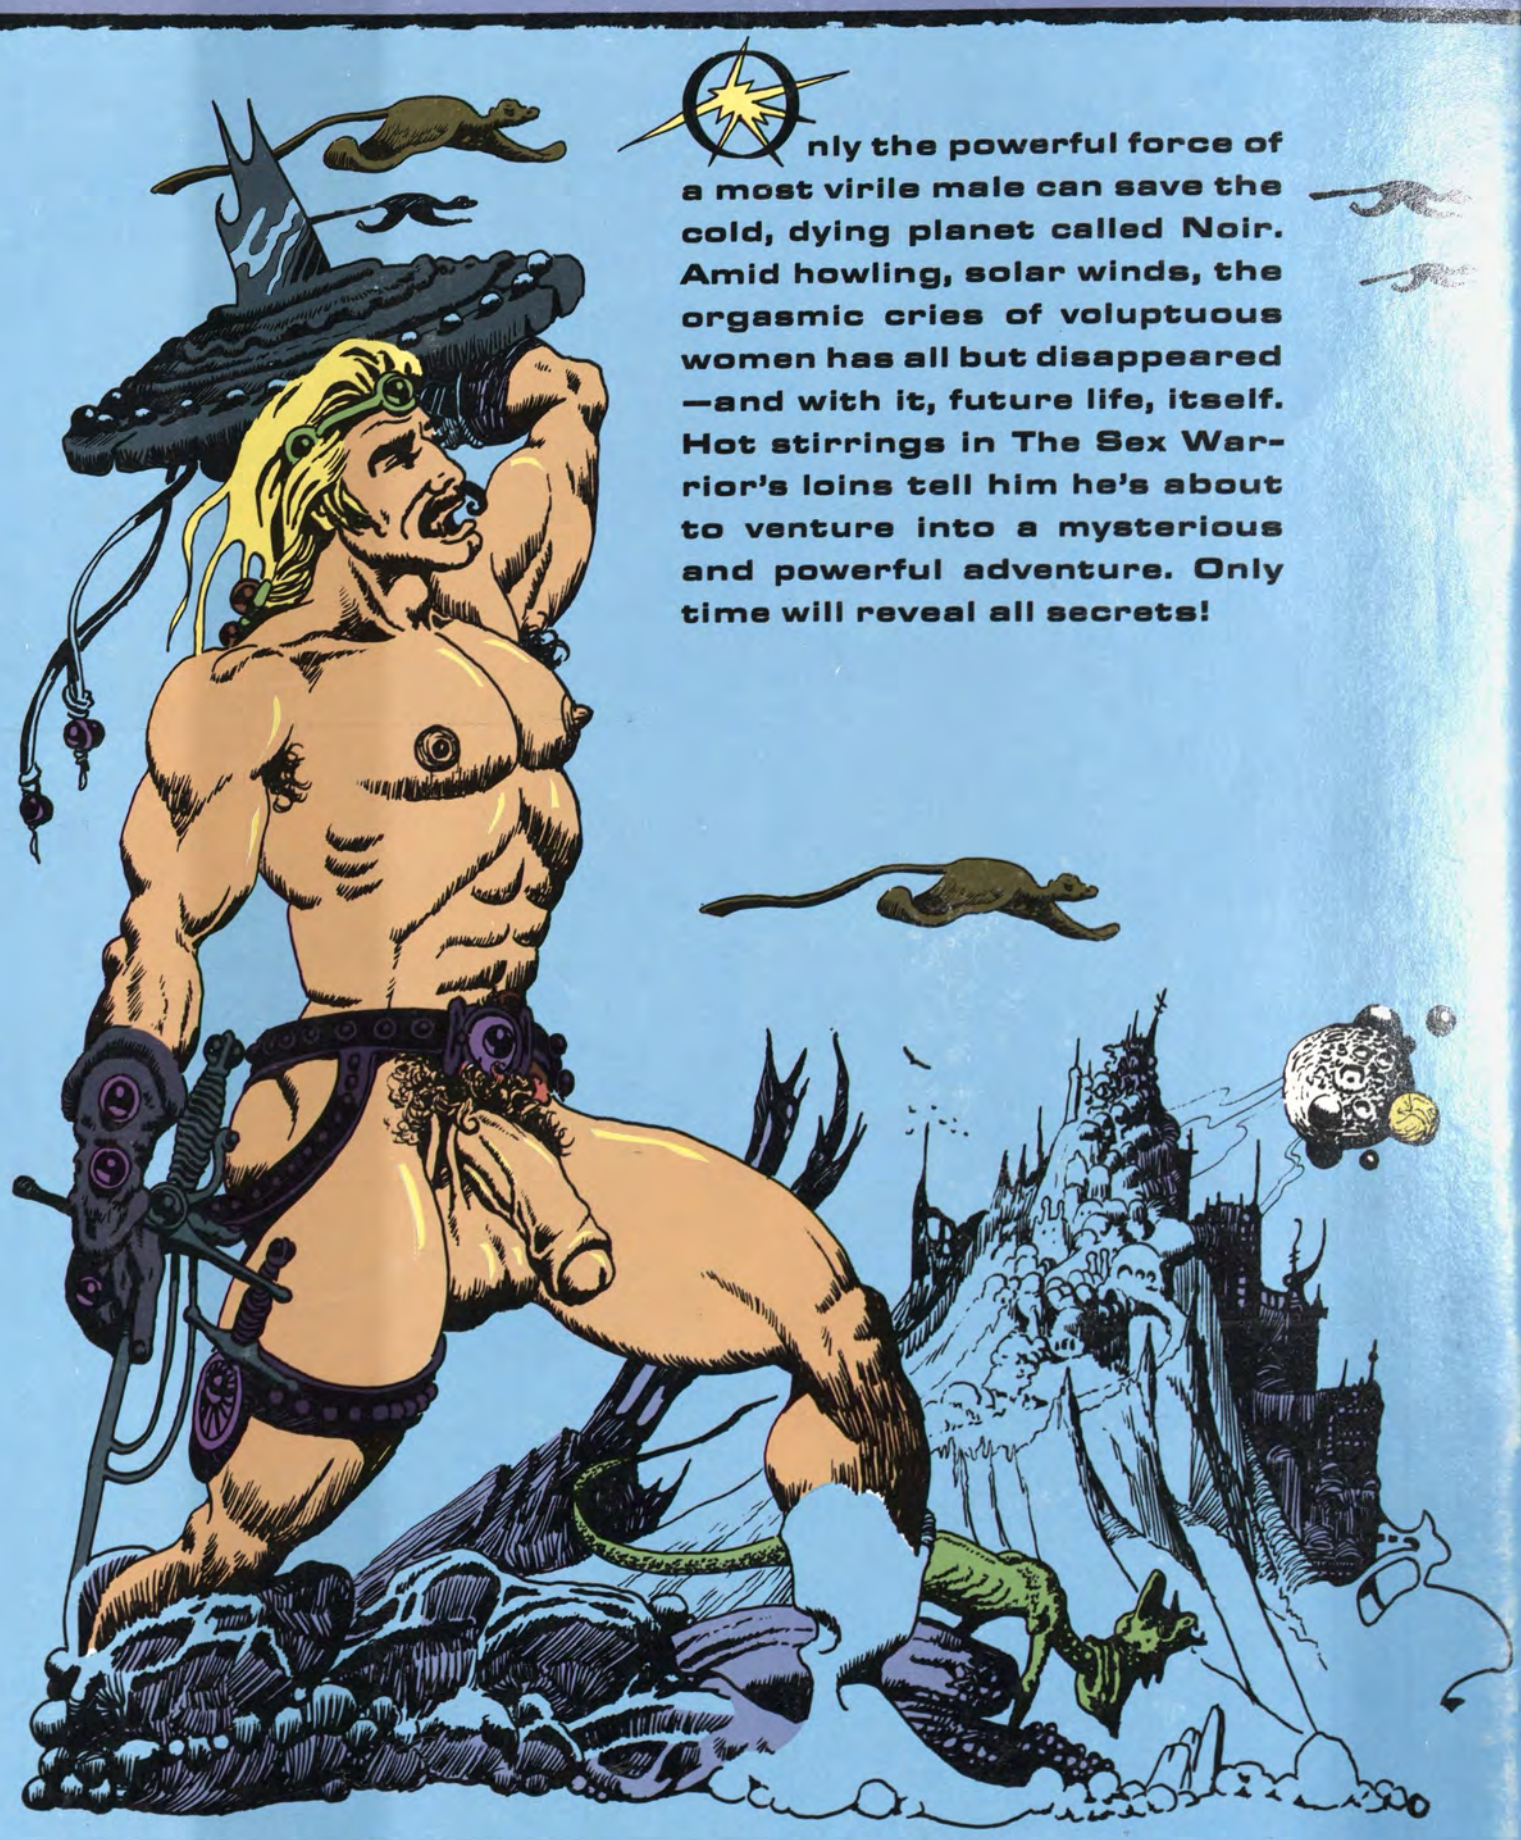
The moment rang out throughout the outlands. And the countryside was filled with beautiful, naked women moving toward the power of Rafe Saxon.



The planet shifted, and the two-thousand year old curse began to reverse itself. The Grand Shaman smiled broadly. There was warmth everywhere. And everywhere women shed their clothes and took whatever male was nearby and made him erect and gave him pleasure. The planet Noir was once again seething with heat and passion. And in the outlands, Rafe Saxon stood amongst his naked worshippers, having finally understood his destiny!



Only the powerful force of a most virile male can save the cold, dying planet called Noir. Amid howling, solar winds, the orgasmic cries of voluptuous women has all but disappeared —and with it, future life, itself. Hot stirrings in The Sex Warrior's loins tell him he's about to venture into a mysterious and powerful adventure. Only time will reveal all secrets!
